BEFORE

THE SENATE SUBCOMMITTEE ON OVERSIGHT OF
GOVERNMENT MANAGEMENT, THE FEDERAL WORKFORCE, AND THE DISTRICT OF
COLUMBIA OF THE U.S. SENATE
COMMITTEE ON HOMELAND SECURITY AND GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS

JUNE 16, 2009

Chairman Akaka, Ranking Member Voinovich, distinguished members of the Subcommittee; I would like to thank the Subcommittee for the opportunity to provide this testimony. As President of the National Treasury Employees Union (NTEU), I have the honor of leading a union that represents thousands of Transportation Security Officers (TSOs) at the Department of Homeland Security's (DHS) Transportation Security Administration (TSA) and 22,000 Customs and Border Protection (CBP) Officers, Agriculture Specialists (CBP AS) and trade enforcement specialists who are stationed at 327 land, sea and air ports of entry (POEs) across the United States. TSOs, CBP Officers and CBP AS make up our nation's first line of defense in the wars on terrorism, drugs, contraband smuggling, human trafficking, agricultural pests, and animal disease while at the same time facilitating legitimate trade and travel.

Employees on the frontlines of our nation's borders and airports are exposed to many threats, the newest being exposure to the H1N1 influenza. On Wednesday, April 22, 2009, the first reports of swine flu exposure in the U.S. became public and the press began reporting on a swine flu outbreak originating in Mexico. This outbreak has raised serious concerns about how the federal government creates and communicates policies to protect the health of frontline personnel. I applaud the Subcommittee for holding this timely hearing.

Policies to mitigate health risks for federal employees should vary according to the type of work being done and the potential for exposure, in this case, to the H1N1 influenza. The general guidelines, which include staying out of crowds, do not adequately address situations where an employee's entire work shift requires him or her to be in close contact (within six feet) of literally thousands of travelers, which is the case for Transportation Security Officers, Customs and Border Protection Officers and Agriculture Specialists.

Specific guidance must be developed and communicated clearly and in writing to these employees who are at increased risk of exposure. It is unacceptable and shocking that more than seven weeks after the onset of the so called swine flu and despite repeated urging from NTEU and others, there is still no comprehensive guidance in place to protect the health of these frontline employees.

Shortly after the swine flu outbreak became public, NTEU started receiving questions from our members at ports of entry around the country. In numerous locations, personal protection equipment (PPE), including gloves and N-95 respirators, was distributed to employees. At JFK Airport in New York, for example, distribution to CBP employees began on April 25th and continued through April 26th with little guidance. In the afternoon of the 26th employees were initially told they were only to wear the respirators if in contact with an ill individual. Later they were told they were not to wear the respirators at all, so as not to alarm the public or offend passengers.

On April 26th Homeland Security Secretary Napolitano sent a message to DHS employees working near the Southwest border. That message stated: "CDC recommends that a distance of six feet should be maintained between all employees and someone who appears ill. The use of N95 masks are suggested if an employee must maintain closer contact than the six feet of distance."

On April 28th, a CBP spokesperson was quoted in CNSNews.com saying, "CBP officers and Border Patrol agents are provided personal protection gear which they may utilize at their discretion".

On April 30th a DHS spokesperson was quoted in a media report saying, "the Department of Homeland Security has not issued an order saying our employees cannot wear masks."

Transportation Security Officers at Dallas/Fort Worth Airport were issued masks on April 26th and on the 28th told they could not wear them unless they were dealing with a traveler exhibiting swine flu symptoms. NTEU wrote to TSA Acting Administrator Gale Rossides asking that TSOs be allowed to wear masks since they were constantly within six feet of travelers and were not expert in determining whether a traveler was ill. To date, we have not received a reply.

According to a press report in the Washington Times on May 2nd, a TSA PowerPoint presentation was distributed to TSA employees on April 29th that stated: ". . . the routine wearing of protective masks by TSA personnel in the workplace is not authorized . . . In addition to not being medically necessary, the masks interfere with normal [transportation security operation] duties and hold the potential for unnecessarily alarming the public ..."

NTEU requested a copy of the PowerPoint presentation, but was told it was not available for public distribution.

As soon as questions began coming in to NTEU from our members around the country as to whether they could wear respirators or masks, NTEU began trying to find out what the current policy was and urged that these employees be allowed to wear the masks if they felt their health was at risk. We contacted CBP, TSA and DHS. DHS was saying it had not issued a department wide order prohibiting the voluntary wearing of masks, but CBP and TSA were clearly enforcing such a prohibition.

Some statements from DHS that appeared in the press indicated that managers who were preventing the wearing of masks were misinformed about the actual policy. The idea that a few managers were misinformed is clearly not accurate. NTEU heard from many, many employees from around the country and attached to this testimony are affidavits from some of them relating instances of supervisors demanding that they remove respirator masks. Many of them are disturbingly threatening and many include comments indicating the reason was fear of alarming the public. I trust this Committee will ensure that the employees providing these affidavits will be free from any negative impact.

On April 30th, DHS issued Interim Guidance stating that: "Employees who work closely with (either in contact with or within 6 feet of) people specifically known or suspected to be infected with the H1N1 virus must wear respiratory protection." (Emphasis Added.) The guidance did not address the question of the voluntary donning of masks. In addition, the Interim Guidance noted it was being released "as an interim measure until the Office of Personnel Management provides comprehensive guidance for all federal employees." OPM has since indicated it does not intend to provide such government wide guidance, stating that on questions such as this, affecting narrow segments of the workforce, decisions are up to the individual agency.

On May 1st, I wrote to DHS Secretary Napolitano and OPM Director Berry urging that written guidance be issued immediately clarifying that these frontline employees would be allowed to wear masks at their discretion. On May 5th CBP Acting Commissioner Ahern sent out an employee message reiterating the mandatory use of respirators when employees were in close contact with people known or suspected to be infected with the H1N1 virus. The message included no reference to the voluntary wearing of respirators despite NTEU's repeated requests to CBP for such guidance.

On May 8th, I sent a second letter to Acting TSA Administrator Rossides and a letter to Acting CBP Commissioner Jayson Ahern asking again for written guidance that these employees be allowed to wear respirators/masks at their discretion.

On May 14, 2009, I testified before the House Committee on Oversight and Government Reform Subcommittee on the Federal Workforce, Postal Service and District of Columbia about the Department of Homeland Security's (DHS) refusal to allow Customs and Border Protection (CBP) and Transportation Security Administration (TSA) employees to wear a respiratory mask, if they so choose, to help protect them from infection from the swine flu virus.

At the hearing, Subcommittee Chairman Stephen Lynch (D-MA) offered to work with NTEU on legislation if this situation was not quickly corrected by the Department. On Friday, May 29th, the Department of Homeland Security Under Secretary for Management, Elaine Duke, issued an updated guidance regarding the use of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE), as it applies to working in close proximity to persons exhibiting symptoms of the H1N1 virus. But again, the guidance failed to provide a clear and reasonable policy allowing for the donning of a mask at your discretion in situations not involving close contact with an apparently infected person. On June 1st, I sent a letter to DHS Under Secretary Duke seeking clarification of the May 29th guidance.

On June 4th, the House of Representatives passed H.R. 2200, the TSA Authorization Act. On the House floor, Representative Lynch offered an amendment to provide that any TSA personnel may voluntarily wear personal protective equipment (including surgical and N95 masks, gloves, and hand sanitizer) during any emergency. NTEU worked closely with Representative Lynch and strongly supported this amendment. The Lynch amendment was passed by voice vote and became part of the bill. The bill now goes to the Senate for consideration.

Unfortunately, H.R. 2200 was limited to TSA related provisions; therefore, the amendment does not address the discretionary use of PPE by CBP Officers and CBP Agriculture Specialists at the ports of entry who also daily come into close contact with thousands of travelers transiting into the U.S. NTEU will work with Congress to include similar language to the Lynch amendment in any upcoming legislation that includes CBP jurisdiction.

NTEU appreciates the Subcommittee holding this hearing as the first step to address this issue in the Senate. We continue to hope that DHS will issue clear guidance on this issue so that legislation, which can take a long time, is not necessary.

As NTEU tried to address the concerns of its members at CBP and TSA, we learned that other components within DHS and other federal agencies had conflicting policies. The president of the Border Patrol union testified at the House hearing that Border Patrol employees, a division within CBP that operates on land borders between ports of entry, were voluntarily donning masks without objection from supervisors. And NTEU was advised by the Internal Revenue Service that our members there were free to wear masks at their discretion.

For the last seven weeks NTEU has tried to answer several simple questions.

- 1) Who is responsible for the policy prohibiting the voluntary wearing of masks at CBP and TSA?

OPM says it is up to each agency. DHS says it has no Department wide policy. CBP and TSA say verbally that voluntary wearing of masks is prohibited, but will not put it in writing. OSHA says there is no policy to prohibit the voluntary wearing of masks and CDC says it is not recommended at this time in low risk situations, which in our view, does not cover the situations our frontline employees are in.

- 2) Why has the policy not been issued in writing?

To this day, neither DHS, nor CBP, nor TSA have issued written guidance addressing the wearing of masks when any employee is not in proximity to an apparently affected individual. NTEU members who requested the policy in writing were told they would not be getting it.

- 3) What is the rationale for prohibiting the voluntary wearing of masks?

No one has been willing to address this question. In the course of attempting to answer this question, we have heard several possibilities, such as the respirators/masks aren't effective. That makes no sense, since when working in close contact with an ill traveler, it is recommended that the traveler and required that the employee don masks.

We have heard that the masks aren't appropriate unless the wearer has undergone a medical evaluation ensuring he or she is fit to wear the mask and the mask is properly fitted. Clearly, the masks would be worn in an emergency situation even if those criteria were not met, but, regardless, most NTEU members have done the medical evaluation and been fitted.

That leaves us with no other possible reasons than a desire to not alarm the public as was apparently stated in the TSA PowerPoint presentation and has been cited by numerous local supervisors. In our view, avoiding unnecessarily alarming the public is not totally without merit. However, it is one factor that must be weighed against the potential health risks to employees, their families and others. It is difficult to weigh the competing factors when there is a refusal to even acknowledge them.

As stated earlier, the duties of our members who work at ports of entry require them to spend their entire workday in crowded conditions. The Transportation Security Officers in Miami International Airport clear approximately 3,300 passengers on each shift, over half this number are international travelers, at JFK it's roughly 9,000 passengers per checkpoint per shift and at O'Hare it's between 9,000 and 12,000 per checkpoint per day. Both TSA and CBP employees perform duties such as reviewing travel documents, wanding passengers, questioning them and sometimes patting them down. All of these duties require being in close contact with travelers.

The NTEU members who have been most affected by this issue work on the land border with Mexico and at airports that clear international travelers, including many entering the country from Mexico. The U.S. Government has advised against unnecessary travel to Mexico and all of the first cases of H1N1 flu in the U.S. involved people who had recently traveled from Mexico. Those who work on the land border saw their Mexican counterparts, often just steps away, wearing masks as they performed their duties. Everyone who crossed the Mexican border in either direction saw Mexican border officials wearing masks. Would it have unduly alarmed them to see some U.S. border officials also wearing masks?

To my knowledge, NTEU members at ports of entry have followed the directives of their local managers and worked diligently through this swine flu outbreak, even if they have requested the ability to wear protective masks for reasons of great concern to themselves and their families. These protectors deserve better. They deserve to know what the policies are. They deserve to know who is responsible for making those policies. They deserve to know the reasons for the policies. They deserve to have the opportunity to provide information to the policymakers and in this instance they need the policy to be changed to reflect a rational balance that gives more weight to the importance of these employees' ability to protect their health than to the potential for public alarm.

As the spring flu season ends in North American, the number of H1N1 victims has tapered off, but the U.S. Government expects a resurgence of this flu strain in the fall and continues to prepare for the upcoming 2009-2010 winter flu season. The issue of the voluntary use of personal protective equipment must be addressed, if not by the agency, then by Congress before the flu season begins again. The House has made a first step by passing the TSA authorization bill with the Lynch amendment. NTEU looks forward to working with the Senate to do the same and to expand this amendment to cover the CBP Officers and CBP Agriculture Specialists that inspect thousands of travelers daily at the ports of entry.

Thank you again for holding this important hearing.

I, Ryan K. Imamura, do hereby state:

1. I am employed by the U.S. Bureau of Customs and Border Protection, Department of Homeland Security, in the position of CBP Officer. I am currently assigned to the port of Las Vegas at McCarran International Airport.
2. My assigned duties include processing of inbound passengers to ensure compliance of U.S. customs and immigration laws. In the course of these duties I regularly come into frequent contact with members of the traveling public from Mexico. These contacts routinely require interaction within six feet of these travelers.
3. CBP employees at my Port were generally instructed that we were not authorized to wear protective masks unless we were within six feet of an individual who was actively exhibiting flu-like symptoms. These instructions were issued orally at muster to CBP employees by Port Director Debbie Sanders, on or about April 28, 2009.
4. On May 1, 2009, I sent an e-mail message to Ms. Sanders through my respective chain of command. The subject was a request for discretionary use of an N95 respirator mask as means of minimizing my chance of contracting H1N1 and in turn infecting my wife, 20 month old daughter and my newborn son. Also included were references to CDC disseminated information that individuals infected with H1N1 could be contagious while not showing outward signs of being sick.
5. Approximately, one hour later, CBP Chief Antonio Gonzalez, came and verbally informed me that Port Director Sanders denied my request. I asked Chief Gonzalez if I would be receiving a written response and he declined. I noted the time and immediately sent an e-mail message to NTEU stewards Monique Jacobs and Ken Eagan regarding the management response. I also sent a copy to Chief Gonzalez so he would have an opportunity to correct anything I may have misinterpreted. To date, Chief Gonzalez has neither challenged nor corrected my recollection of this encounter.
6. CBP management is gambling with the health and lives of its employees and their families. We are a group of dedicated, vigilant and hardworking professionals that love our jobs and our country. All we ask in return is the right to protect ourselves and our families while we protect America.

I swear/affirm under penalty of perjury the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

I, Maria M. Seda Franqui, do hereby state:

1. I am employed by the U.S. Customs and Border Protection, Department of Homeland Security, in the position of Customs and Border Protection Agriculture Specialist. I am currently assigned to the Laredo, Texas Port of Entry, a land port across the border from Mexico.
2. My assigned duties include processing vehicles, passengers, and pedestrians inbound to the United States from Mexico to ensure compliance with, among other laws, U.S. Agriculture, Customs, and Immigration laws. In the course of performing those duties, I regularly come in contact with members of the traveling public inbound from Mexico. The performance of my regularly assigned duties as a CBP Officer requires that I routinely maintain contact within six feet of individuals arriving from Mexico.
3. On or about April 27, 2009, at approximately 1700 hours I was assigned to and working the secondary inspection area at the Laredo Port of Entry. I was in the process of inspecting a vehicle and its passengers, and writing a penalty. A young woman (age 14-16 years), one of the passengers in the vehicle I was inspecting began vomiting. Despite the obvious illness, Supervisory Customs and Border Protection Officer Francisco Molina ordered me to remove the protective mask I was wearing. He said he had decided that the woman was sick because she was pregnant and that I did not need to wear the mask unless the passenger showed signs of sickness. The woman's mother had also placed an ice-pack over the woman's head at all times I was present with her. I understood that I had to obey the orders of the supervisor, and that is why I removed the protective mask.
4. I desired to wear the mask because of concerns about contracting swine flu.

I swear/affirm under penalty of perjury the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

I, Lilia Pineda, do hereby state:

1. I am employed by the U.S. Bureau of Customs and Border Protection, Department of Homeland Security (hereinafter referred to as "CBP") in the position of CBP Officer. I am currently assigned to the Otay Mesa Port of Entry, a land border.
2. My assigned duties include processing inbound passengers, vehicles and pedestrians to ensure compliance with U.S. Customs and Immigration laws. In the course of performing those duties, I regularly come in contact with members of the travelling public inbound from Mexico. These contacts routinely require contact within six feet of those individuals.
3. On or about April 28, 2009, I was working at Otay Mesa, Primary Lane 4, and decided to wear an N-95 respirator mask. I made this decision for several reasons. I have been fitted for an N-95 respirator mask. (I had also been trained to fit other CBP Officers for the N-95 respirator mask.) I was encountering individuals who were coming from Mexico City and other cities in central Mexico, where the swine flu is prevalent. Also, I had a cold at the time and felt I was especially vulnerable to getting another illness. I was also concerned about exposing other family members to the swine flu, including my infant nephew, whom I see regularly.
4. At approximately 9:30 a.m., while wearing the N-95 respirator mask while working, I was approached by Chief Kait who instructed me to remove my mask. I explained to him that I had taken the training for respirator fit test trainer, that I felt it was a health and safety issue for me to wear the mask, that I had been fitted for a respirator mask, etc. Despite my objection, Chief Kait refused to allow me to wear the mask. He repeatedly asked me angrily with his hands at his waist, "Are you going to comply or do you want to go home sick." I did comply.

I, Kenneth Eagan, do hereby, state:

1. I am employed by the U.S. Bureau of Customs and Border Protection, Department of Homeland Security, in the position of Customs and Border Protection Officer. I am currently assigned to the Las Vegas Port of Entry, an airport.
2. My assigned duties include processing inbound passengers, to ensure compliance with U.S. customs and immigration laws. In the course of performing those duties, I regularly come in close contact with members of the traveling public arriving from Mexico. These contacts routinely require contact within six feet of those individuals.
3. On Monday April 27 2009, I was scheduled to work Primary Inspection Booth 8 from 0930 until 1730. After I set up in the booth to begin processing passengers, I donned protective gloves and the N-95 mask. The first two flights of the day were from Mexico, and one of those was from Mexico City, the epicenter of the swine flu outbreak. During the second flight, Mexicana flight 996 arriving from Mexico City, Chief Gonzalez came to my assigned booth and blocked the aisle so no new passengers could approach. The other supervisor, Ernie Campbell blocked the booth door behind me. I was processing a passenger at the time and Chief Gonzalez interrupted the inspection, ordering me to remove the mask. He stated, " TAKE THE MASK OFF NOW, YOU ARE NOT AUTHORIZED TO WEAR A MASK." I finished processing the passenger, removed the nitrile gloves, used hand sanitizer to clean my hands and then removed the N-95 mask.
4. After I removed the mask, Chief Gonzalez told me not to wear a mask while processing passengers. He told me that the only time I could wear a mask was if the person standing in front of me was showing obvious signs of the flu, as had been explained in a muster briefing. I told Chief Gonzalez that if I waited for someone to hack (cough) on me, it would be too late for the mask to protect against exposure. Additionally, I advised him that according to the CDC, a person could have the flu from one to seven days without showing any symptoms, but would be contagious within 24 to 48 hours after becoming infected. He again ordered me to not wear any protective masks until flu symptoms were being displayed by the passenger in front of me.
5. CBP employees at my POE were generally instructed that we were not authorized to wear protective masks unless we were within six feet of an individual who exhibited flu-like symptoms. These instructions were issued verbally at multiple musters by Chief Gonzalez, Supervisors Ernie Campbell, Frank Hoopes, Olivia Dorsey and Port Director Sanders.

I, Samuel Santiago, do hereby state:

1. I am employed by the U.S. Customs and Border Protection, Department of Homeland Security, in the position of Customs and Border Protection Officer. I am currently assigned to the Laredo, Texas Port of Entry, a port on the land border with Mexico.
2. My assigned duties include processing vehicles, passengers, and pedestrians inbound to the United States from Mexico to ensure compliance with, among other laws, U.S. Customs and Immigration laws. In the course of performing those duties, I regularly come in contact with members of the traveling public inbound from Mexico. The performance of my regularly assigned duties as a CBP Officer requires that I routinely maintain contact within six feet of individuals arriving from Mexico.
3. On April 28, 2009, and again on April 30, 2009, U.S. Customs and Border Protection management instructed me not to wear a protective mask and to remove the protective mask that I had been wearing.

On April 28, 2009, at around 0740 I arrived at Bridge 1, Laredo POE to begin my assigned shift (0800-0400). I inquired what preventive measures were being taken to avoid exposure to the Swine Flu, to which I was informed that face masks were available for use. I opted to wear one. A few minutes later Supervisor Esteban Morales communicated by radio that the use of face masks was not authorized. I asked to see the policy in writing, as I was led to believe that the masks were provided by the agency for safety reasons, to be used by all employees. After this incident, I went into the CBP Net website which indicated that the use of masks was to be at the employee's discretion if official duties were to be carried out at a distance of less than 6 feet of other individuals. I proceeded to pass this information on to Supervisor Morales, who forwarded it to Chief CBP Officer Adriana Arce.

On April 30, 2009, at approximately 0930, I was working on primary when Supervisor Juan Garza approached me and indicated that my presence was requested at a meeting with Chief CBP Officers Arturo Ramirez and Adriana Arce. I immediately complied, and when I reached the office, Supervisors Herminia Garcia, Jorge Ruiz, Esteban Morales, and Juan Garza were present. Two other CBP Officers, Miguel Medrano and Carlos Garcia, had also been called in to the meeting. Chief CBP Officer Arce and the other managers told me we were not authorized to use the face masks as protection against the risk of exposure to the Swine Flu, but that we could keep them within reach, in case we encountered an infected person. I requested the order in writing, to which Chief Arce replied that she would not put anything in writing. Chief Arce became very upset and said she could proceed to take disciplinary action against me.

The Chief indicated that the public was not to be alarmed, as it would create a negative economical impact, that the Swine Flu was only a virus, and there was no reason to be concerned. I responded that I was not a doctor, and had no medical training, so how was

I supposed to know when a person might be ill. I was also told to escort any person who was ill to another area, far from the rest of the traveling public. I wanted to know what that area was, or where it was, since we had not received instructions on how to properly process an ill person.

I asked if I was expected to pay medical expenses out of my own pocket if I were to become ill due to the Swine Flu, to which the managers indicated that the agency would not be responsible for any of my expenses, even though they would be directly responsible for any exposure and subsequent illness.

4. I desired to wear the mask because of concerns about contracting swine flu.

I swear/affirm under penalty of perjury the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

3. On or about May 1, 2009, I sent an email to Chief Antonia Gonzalez, and requested that I be afforded the option of wearing a protective mask while processing passengers to protect me and my family against the H1N1 flu. I asked for a YES or NO answer to my question. What prompted my email was an incident that occurred earlier in the day, where a concern arose about whether an inbound passenger had been infected. By the time the passenger had been identified numerous CBP Officers had been physically within six feet of the passenger.
4. While on my nutrition break at 1728, I was approached by Chief Gonzalez. He requested that I turn off the television because he needed to speak with me. He stood in front of me - on the other side of the table - while Supervisor Hoopes stood behind me in front of the door. Chief Gonzalez then told me that in accordance with the directive, unless a passenger appears to be ill, I am not allowed to don a mask and that this was as close to in writing as I was going to get. I later confirmed in writing that based upon this conversation, I understood that I was being denied the right to don a mask unless I have visual signs of an ill passenger.
